

Pistol-packed church service to be held

Written by Holyoke Enterprise

The Pistol-Packing Preacher Randy Gunn and his wife Heidi (Straight Arrow) will be in Holyoke Sunday, Aug. 1 for the community church service scheduled to be held at Homesteaders Park from 9-10 a.m.

The couple entertains audiences with trick shooting as well as presenting music and gospel.

In 2002 and 2003, Randy became a Western U.S., National and World Champion Cowboy Mounted Shooter. Both Randy and Heidi are active members in the Cowboy Mounted Shooting Association (CMSA).

The couple's website states, "God has given Randy and Heidi favor as shooters and ministers to an extensive cowboy family. Randy, also known as the "Pistol-Packin' Preacher," uses horse training principles and concepts to present the gospel of Christ."

Randy and Heidi and the GunnPoint Band present a very fun and energized service, drawing in cowboys who might otherwise never attend a church. One of the most commonly heard quotes from cowboys young and old is, "If church was like that all of the time, I would never miss a service."

For more information on Cowboy Ministries, go to www.gunnpoint.us/cowboyministries.html.