

Grandma's New to You now open at Deavers

Written by Holyoke Enterprise

Grandma's "New to You" has captured the front portion of Deaver Hardware's north side at 110 S. Interoccean Ave. in Holyoke.

Attractive displays of antiques and collectibles are now in place in the new store section, where housewares used to be located at Deavers.

Nora Deaver said she's still in the process of setting up the store. This type of inventory has been in Deavers' back room, and is now being moved out front for display purposes, according to Nora.

Deaver said she is trying to start the "buy, sell and trade" part of the antique and collectible business, and will also consign items on e-bay for customers.

How did she come up with the name for the new venture? Deaver said it's Grandma's stuff, and "when you buy it, it's new to you."

Items on display at Grandma's New to You are used or previously owned.
