

CFB Foundation helps Heartstrong Fire farmers and ranchers in need

Written by Holyoke Enterprise

Colorado Farm Bureau Foundation has established an agricultural disaster fund to help those in need. The Foundation has activated a fund to help those in agriculture devastated by the destructive fire that swept through Yuma County March 18. Farmers and ranchers lost miles of fencing, hay and grass.

The fire has endangered humans, livestock, structures and homes and has left a large swath of destruction. The fire that is now 100 percent contained burned a total of 24,000 acres, 38 square miles. There were two homes that were a complete loss.

All donations will be distributed to those farmers and ranchers affected by the destruction. Make tax deductible donations at: <http://coloradofarmbureau.com/yuma-fire-donate-now/> or Colorado Farm Bureau Foundation—Yuma Fire, 9177 East Mineral Circle, Centennial, CO 80112.

Benefit show scheduled Saturday, March 24

A benefit show is coming together to also help those affected by the disaster. The benefit will be held at City Limits in Yuma Saturday, March 24 starting at 6 p.m. A free will donation will be taken at the door.

The CFB Foundation is a 501 (c)(3) charitable foundation with a catastrophic disaster fund dedicated to assisting farmers and ranchers in need following agricultural disasters such as blizzard, flood or wildfire.

The fund was initially established to assist farmers and ranchers in southwest Colorado following devastating blizzards of 2007.
