

Fire up, Dragons: It's Homecoming time!

I have a very serious confession to make: I love puns. Really, I love everything about them. They are just so “punny,” I don’t know how you couldn’t love them!

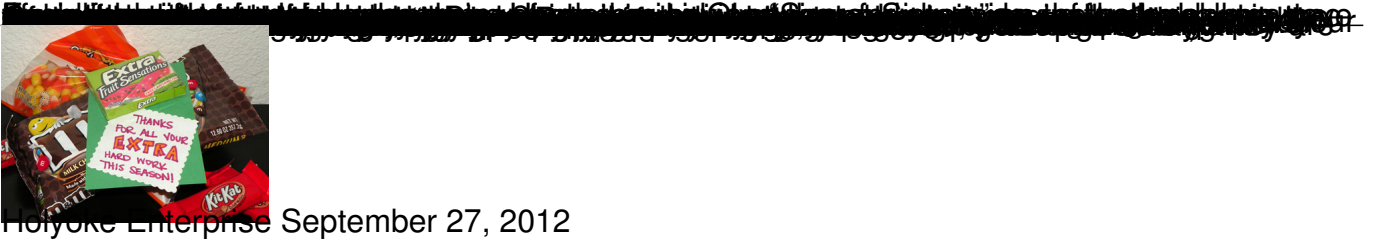

I think this obsession of mine must have developed at a young age. And one event that really sticks out in my mind is Homecoming.

Despite my vertically-challenged height and lack of any sort of athleticism, I was on the Lady Dragon volleyball team in high school. And that meant I got to experience the Homecoming festivities in all their glory.

Our moms decorated our lockers, the town held a parade in our honor, we decorated the school and every little girl either wore a cheerleading skirt or green and gold glittery hair spray to root on the Dragons. (I’m still not sure why fall sports get to have all the fun!)

I'm Just Cookin'

Written by Darci Tomky

Holyoke Enterprise September 27, 2012