

Tastefully brilliant melodrama has audience eating out of their hands

Written by Darci Tomky

Phillips County Players had the audience eating out of their hands in the hilarious and tasty “Someone Save My Baby, Ruth! Or... Foil That Villain!”

The melodrama, directed by Penny Dockins, was a sweet treat presented at the Peerless Theatre Sunday, Nov. 4.

Villain and villainess Sidney Swindle and Ada Sourball (Maury Kramer and Karen Swan) were dramatically brilliant as they tried to take over Praline Candy’s (Ashley Sullivan) Boston candy store.

Melodrama villains played by Maury Kramer and Karen Swan plot out their evil tactics before their plans can be foiled ... literally. —Enterprise photo

Penny Candy and Officer Ernest Noble (Andrea McCallum and Eric Conklin) took drama to a whole new level, all while batting eye lashes, falling in love and catching the kidnapper of little Baby Ruth.

Tastefully brilliant melodrama has audience eating out of their hands

Written by Darci Tomky

