

Bring on the new year!

It's time to ring in the new year the right way ... with junk food! But really, what would a great New Year's Eve party be without some sweet and salty munchies to crunch on?

With all the stress of Christmastime, I thought it was time to give you some stress-free recipes. The ROLO Pretzel Delights from her sheys.com (or the back of the ROLO bag) and the Beef Enchilada Dip from addapinch.com are super, super easy. I'm not kidding—they're easy!!

The ROLO recipe calls for pecans, but I'm not a big fan, so I substituted M&Ms instead. You can also use a Hershey's Kiss in the flavor of your choice in place of the ROLO and top it with anything from nuts to sprinkles to mini marshmallows.

These seriously take three minutes in the oven. So easy! Or you can pop a few in the microwave for 30 seconds. Even easier!

I know I'm touting the ROLOs and Beef Enchilada Dip for New Year's, but just imagine this at your next football party (or when your husband forgot to tell you he invited the guys over for the game).

I'm not a big fan of onion or garlic in my dip, so I simplified that recipe even more by just using the beef, enchilada sauce and cheese. It can be whipped up in no time, and your guests will be begging for more!

Let's look forward to a stress-free, yummy-tasting 2014.

I'm Just Cookin'

Written by Darci Tomky

