

Fort Sedgwick program gives new perspective

Written by Holyoke Enterprise

Members and the general public are invited to attend the Fort Sedgwick Historical Society's annual program Sunday, April 27 at the Fort Sedgwick Museum in Julesburg. Doors open at 1:30 p.m.

Historians Vance and Karen Nelson's program "Frontier Forts as Communities: A Misunderstood Perspective" will describe the social life that existed at most frontier military posts because of the presence of women and children.

The presentation begins at 2 p.m. and will include details about Fort Sedgwick and a mini-exhibit of vintage clothing and other related historic items.

To read the full article, call us about setting up an e-Subscription. 970-854-2811

Holyoke Enterprise April 10, 2014