

This is Severe Weather Awareness Week

Written by Holyoke Enterprise

Colorado Severe Weather Awareness Week is April 13-19. It's a time when Colorado residents and visitors need to be prepared for the dangers inherent from both warmer spring weather and winter-like storms, and the American Red Cross urges people to take simple steps to improve their safety and awareness.

The Red Cross provides a variety of tools and information to aid personal preparedness for severe weather. Among its many resources are mobile apps that put vital information at one's fingertips. The American Red Cross apps provide information that can help people plan for, respond to and understand different types of severe weather and scenarios.

To read the full article, subscribe to our e-Edition. Call 970-854-2811 for details!

Holyoke Enterprise April 17, 2014