

PC Telcom returns to main street

Written by Holyoke Enterprise

Returning to Holyoke's main street, PC Telcom customer service office may once again be found at 240 S. Interocean Ave. Final moving day was held Friday, Sept. 11, and employees reported directly there Monday morning.

The company relocated to 120 N. Sunflower Drive while the downtown building received a new roof, as well as other upgrades.

Last month, the administrative offices and staff relocated to the former medical clinic at 520 S. Interocean Ave.

As of this week, no portion of the local telephone company remains housed at 120 N. Sunflower Drive in the Hassler Insurance building one mile east of the stoplight.

But that's not quite the end of the story. Next week, the final step will be taken when Radio Shack will move to the north portion of the main street building at 240 S. Interocean.

In the move from 102 S. Campbell Ave., Radio Shack will be closed one day next week, on Thursday, Sept. 24, but will open for business in its new home Friday.
