

Life comes full circle as Ward joins Chu Clinic

Written by Jeremy D. Smith, The West Alabama Watchman

Life can have a way of coming full circle. And it seems such has occurred for Demopolis' newest doctor in Demopolis, Ala., Tiffany (Harms) Ward.

At 14 years old, Ward surely had no idea she was going to end up in a rural town in Alabama serving the community as a physician alongside one of the very same men who was helping to provide her health care treatment in her time of need. But that is exactly what took place when she started her career with the Chu Clinic in September.

"I was in a car accident in which I broke both of my legs when I was 14 years old, and, believe it or not, Dr. (Ronnie) Chu was a big part of me even walking again," Ward said.

"I have seen the good and the ugly on both sides of medicine. My family physician listened, encouraged and pushed me to be stronger. His impact on my life was the catalyst to my career and the example of the family physician I wanted to become. It has all come full circle, and not only am I able to help this amazing community, but I am able to help Dr. Chu at his clinic as well."
