

Enterprise announces improved e-Edition

Written by Holyoke Enterprise

For all our Enterprise website readers, you have been seeing some changes in the web edition of the Enterprise.

The Enterprise is now limiting its online content. Readers can see the front page news in its entirety, but other articles are offered in a shortened version.

The Enterprise now has a new and improved digital e-Edition. It is the complete newspaper—articles, photos, ads ... everything—all on the computer. It can easily be read on home computers, iPads, iPhones and other smart devices. Readers can even download a PDF version of the newspaper to save on their computer, and archives of past newspapers will be catalogued online.

E-Editions will be uploaded every Wednesday, so it's convenient for those who live out of Holyoke and have to wait patiently for their newspaper to arrive in the mail.

A one-year e-subscription is $30, the same rate as a local subscription. If readers already have a print subscription, they can add on the e-Edition for $10 per year.
